

CRAIN'S
HEALTH PULSE
NEW YORK

August 20, 2021 05:30 AM

AT A GLANCE

GENDER RESEARCH: The Visiting Nurse Service of New York's Center for Home Care Policy & Research has been awarded a $3.4 million grant from the National Institutes of Health for a gender-affirmation program, it announced Wednesday. The study, co-led by Miriam Ryvicker from the VNSNY center and Columbia School of Nursing's Walter Bockting, seeks to understand the psychosocial well-being and quality of life of individuals after gender-affirming surgery.